Excel to PDF Batch Convert Multiple Files Software Torrent Download convert many Excel files into PDF format without Adobe Acrobat. You must have Excel installed on your machine. Requirements: ⏺ Excel 2000 or higher. Limitations: ⏺ Demo version convert half of pdf fileCommerzbank has lost US$62bn in the past year, after suffering an 8.8 per cent net loss in the third quarter. In total, the bank lost €12.3bn in the year, in a period when global interest rates – and the market value of its Greek government bonds – hit their lowest points in three decades. The figures are down 42 per cent year-on-year, the bank said. The bank's profit plummeted to €405m, compared to a €2.3bn in the third quarter of 2011. It has also seen a decline in assets. In the third quarter, Commerzbank's total assets fell 5.1 per cent to €1.7 trillion. The figures are a heart-breaking development for the bank, which made a profit of €1.07bn in the third quarter of 2011. The group did not release its results in the September to December period, but we're told that it lost €21bn. Earlier this month, Commerzbank revealed that it has already lost €20.7bn in the third quarter, suggesting that its results could be even worse. The results could be especially bad for CEO Anshu Jain, who took the helm in September 2010, and was also the bank's head of group strategy and co-head of the bank's global markets division. The bank has also seen a drop in market share, with its share of the German banking market falling to 5 per cent, down from 8.5 per cent in the third quarter of 2011. Commerzbank shares, which are owned by the Commerzbank Aktiengesellschaft, have fallen 17 per cent in the past year. The mood on the street was jubilant when Jain took the top job, with the share price having quadrupled between 2008 and 2010. But as is the case with many global banks, times were tough as the Euro zone debt crisis raged, and Commerzbank has been hit hard by the market volatility. Jain's predecessor, Jan Bröhl, was
